KultuRallye

Rules make life easier - or do they?

The Project.
Explicit and implicit rules are an expression of every culture. It doesn't matter whether it's the culture of a country or of a company or of a department in a company: rules regulate how we live with each other. Getting to grips with 'foreign' rules is the main issue at the heart of this learning project.

How It's Done.
It begins very simply. On each table, the delegates warm up to the game by practising how to play with specially developed dice and also get to grips with the rules of the game. After a while, they are no longer allowed to speak and the game starts. After a brief period, some of the delegates change tables. But what they don't know is that each table has different rules on how to play the game! Unable to speak, they have to come to terms with the strange situation, i.e., either learn the new rules or 'import' their own. This "culture" shock is a real eye-opener. The delegates tangibly experience what it feels like to be in a new environment and what is needed to find your way around.

Delegates (min / opt / max): 9 / 12 / 16 (up to 35 with KultuRallye XXL)
Time (w/o debriefing): 20 - 25 minutes
Space requirements: approx. 60 m², for 4 tables (or 7 tables for XXL) with enough distance separating them.

Topics and Outcomes.
Intercultural Communication: dealing with new people, understanding 'foreign' cultures, explicit and implicit rules.
Team Development: developing common rules (such as when merging two departments or forming a new team), start of the school year, setting rules.
Dealing With New Conditions: developing new strategies, orientation in a new situation under difficult circumstances.
